People who subscribe to cable tv are getting the content that the cable company provides by contracting with CNN, FOX, etc. It's precisely this reason that I don't have cable. I don't, as a consumer want to be forced to support content that I don't agree with. This is a free country and that is my right. Like wise, if you change the Open Internet, the only way that I will be able to access the World Wide Web is by supporting the companies that pay for faster throughput. That will only give these companies more revenues through page clicks and stifle other companies that don't have the cash to pay Internet Providers. It's one thing to ask me to support CNN by getting cable. I can simply cut the cord, as they say. It's quite another to tell me I can't access the Internet without subsidizing companies that line my IP's pockets. Please take my comment into consideration when you make your decision and I trust that you will do the right thing. Thank you for your attention to this matter.
