As a resident of NH, I have recently witnessed the power that citizens and employees of a company can employ. Demoulas Market Basket has been in the news all over the nation, people such as myself refusing to shop, boycotting the takeover and firing of CEO Arthur T. and the employees themselves refusing to work under the new management. The protests by the employees and heartfelt support of the public facilitated the buyout and re-instatement of Arthur T. YES!

I would hope to see this same kind of activism for the cause of net neutrality, WHICH SHOULD REMAIN INTACT. People are fed up with greed and corruption. We are at the mercy of these companies, faced with one service provider or no internet at all. This is a fair market??? This is a MONOPOLY!!!! You know, as well as all of us, this is true. The little people do matter, and small companies should be accorded the same rights and opportunities as the big corporations. Isn't that the very principle this country was founded on???
