

7521827258.txt

Destroying net neutrality is a great way to destroy America's competitiveness in the global market. Foreign nations have already lost faith in US tech companies due to the NSA leaks and this could really open the gates for other nations to take over the control of technological development. Competitive internet access is the number one driver of business in this day and age and by choking the ability of users to get competitive access companies and businesses will go else where.