

7521827362.txt

Allowing a multiple lane internet will make the internet and its information boarder line class warfare. Its hard enough to afford an internet service let alone have to pay more to a larger company so they can recoup the costs. Not to mention the start up competition it will crush. This isn't a only a bad idea its the worst idea possible, and to even propose such an idea should point to the degradation of the companies ideology and greedy nature.