Fuck this two tiered broadband proposal. The internet is a utility, not some vehicle for immense profits.

Just reclassify broadband as a public utility and allow for "local loop unbundling" or whatever they call it these days so other companies can rent (at reasonable prices) the wires to people's homes and create real competition in the broadband space.

Its a little crazy that no one in the FCC is even willing to talk about this option. Do the cable companies really pay everyone there that much.
