

7521841153.txt

Net Neutrality matters to me because whatever content I want to access online shouldn't be slowed down just because they couldn't pay for faster downloading time. The FCC says that content won't be slowed if they can't pay, but there is only so much room to give companies that can pay for faster downloads. Inevitably, someone's content will be slowed down to afford the bandwidth for someone else.