

To whom it might concern;

On the wings of a new era stand we,
and by its glorious lift are we taken.
To new sights, new experiences,
to grand places, locations.
And if not to be ungrateful,
we must not forsake it.

The internet is a presence
relied on by too many.
Yet here we stare at its remnants,
As what once was free
might require a fee.

Equality is the foundation
upon which we all stand...

If those who pay for injustice
are allowed in their plots to succeed,
then it is for prejudice baseless
that we all must suffer.