WHAT YOU ARE PROPOSING IS AN ABSOLUTELY DISGUSTING ATTEMPT TO PROTECT CORPORATE PROFITS. The internet can be the greatest source of knowledge, accessible by all humans, and thus allow everyone to build on each other's ideas and improve life for all of humanity. By placing speed limits on sites that do not pay a premium, you are actually inhibiting humanity from reaching its full potential. If you think making absurd profits for ISPs is more important than allowing humanity to flourish to its full potential, then FUCK YOU.
