

7522050389.txt

The internet is not for anyone to control. It's not a market. Net neutrality is important, and not just for social media purposes, but with keeping up with the news and understanding what's going on around us. It's an important resource. No one should be able to control the internet.