It's important to me as a small business owner and friend of small business owners that those of us who want to branch out into the internet (such as digital art) have that opportunity. America is founded on the pioneering attitude of reaching new frontiers and then setting our sights for the next one. Entrepreneurship and starting your own business (which now DEMANDS a website like it or not) is the core of what makes this country America. It's signature. It's the most American and patriotic thing to contribute directly to this country by becoming part of the economy and helping to uphold the infrastructure of your local community through that business. Commercializing the internet to the degree that even moderate level businesses can't compete "in the fast lane" might fill fat CEO pockets, but it will destroy the American dream. Do you want to be responsible for letting this happen?
