I want internet service providers classified as common carriers under title II. I do not want to see any opportunity for the Internet to become a tiered business model by ISPs. I am aware of the rhetoric on both sides but the bottom line for me is that once that door is opened for ISPs to potentially (a very likely possibility in my opinion since there is a profit potential for "premium" type services) tier their services there is really no going back and will affect the poorest segments of our population.
