

7522138625.txt

I want internet service providers classified as common carriers.

The internet is by far the largest collection of knowledge available to the public and limiting this information to citizens based on affordability (whether they can afford the cost of sites or not) is simply wrong. Net neutrality allows equal access to this information, please don't destroy it.

*Please Note: the address attached to this is not my real address, I am a Canadian citizen and unable to officially comment on this.