

Internet service providers should be classified as common carriers. Net neutrality is an essential public right. I oppose any rule which allows internet providers to provide different speeds to different sites; all data should be treated the same and not able to be bought by the highest bidder at the expense of the citizenry.