Dear FCC,

My name is Jeremy Johnson and I live in Louisville, KY.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it users may have fewer options and a less diverse Internet.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

As an independent musician, I have relied on the internet to share my music with fans as well as book tours, and show fans what my band is up to. I also have a 4 year old son, who I would like to have the same options that I have when he is old enough.

Sincerely,

Jeremy Johnson
