Dear FCC,

My name is Brylie Christopher Oxley and I live in Nevada City, CA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it our right to free expression and civil discourse may be disrupted by commercial content and profit incentives.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because profit should not take priority over civil discourse, creative culture, or free expression.

I enjoy sharing my photography. I appreciate my photographs being shared, and want to ensure that anyone viewing my photography has equal access to my art as they would any other content or expression on the Internet. Equality and freedom of expression are top priorities for our communications infrastructure and emerging technologies such as the Internet.

Sincerely,

Brylie Christopher Oxley
