Dear FCC,

My name is Chris Calloway and I live in Santa Rosa, CA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it users may have fewer options and a less diverse Internet.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

You understand if you go through with this, you put a giant target on your head for all the hackers in the nation. If this passes, I'd give you a month tops before a group of hackers tackles you down as if you were a frail Grandma. The Internet is a free and wild place, you try to tame it, it will bite back hard. Just think of the movie Braveheart, except we the people of the Internet are allowed to have weapons and are trained to use them. One last thing, "Freeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeeddom!" ~William Wallace~

Sincerely,

Chris Calloway
