Dear FCC,

My name is Tim Calhoun and I live in East Lansdowne, PA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The internet is important because it is the future of most business innovation. A few people should not be able to censor and cap the flow of ideas. Don't make a terrible choice and put the future of the Internet in the hands of a wealthy few.

Sincerely,

Tim Calhoun
