

7522719500.txt

I am writing to say I am against the proposed Fast Lanes. I am completely against pay for priority because this will make accessible affordable internet for Americans worse than it already is. I strongly support making the internet a Title II carrier because a large portion of America not only wants to have a connection but quite literally NEEDS a connection in order to function and work in daily life, much as electricity is needed in order to function in daily life. Internet is not just a toy, a plaything to watch movies on. Without a connection many people are not able to apply for jobs or do the work they need to for the job they have. The status of broadband internet in the US is laughingly pathetic, especially compared to other countries. It's a travesty that the merger between Time Warner and Comcast is even being considered since there is virtually no competition between carriers in the US and that would only eliminate more competition. Having the internet prioritized will further split people who cannot afford "fast lanes" (because of course with fast lanes there ARE slow lanes, it's a given! Even a child could tell you that if there are lanes slower than the fast lanes they're BY DEFINITION slow lanes) and the companies can use this prioritization to extort more money out of people and companies (See: Netflix vs ISPs).

Make the internet a Title II common carrier and ban prioritization ("fast lanes") and increase the definition of broadband. Please, FIX this awful state of the internet in the US!