Dear FCC,

My name is Daryn Raymer and I live in kalamazoo, MI.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The Internet is important to me because, as a consumer of streaming products, allowing cable companies to slow down services that they select would allow them to determine what i am able to watch, taking choice out of my hands. and i worry that as a video gamer, they will start charging fees on top of the video game companies for access to online content.

Sincerely,

Daryn Raymer
