Dear FCC,

My name is Marty Plummer and I live in Cleveland, TX.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The Internet is important to me because, as an aspiring game developer and general lover of knowledge, I need access to various software and libraries to develop my games and just learn about anything that catches my eye.

Sincerely,

Marty Plummer
