Dear FCC,

My name is David Guerrero and I live in Phoenix, AZ.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it as a small business owner, I lose the equal playing field with larger companies.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The Internet is important to me because, as a small business owner, I need to know that there will not be barriers to entry for the new ideas and services that I hope to bring to the marketplace. If ISP subscribers have an easier time loading websites of existing companies than mine, there's no way that I will be able to compete or succeed.

Sincerely,

David Guerrero
