Dear FCC,

My name is Alex and I live in Atlanta, GA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it the international attend of free speech should be protected nor bout by corrupt politicians

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

The Internet is important to me because, as a college business student, I need to know that there will not be barriers to entry for the new ideas and services that I hope to bring to the marketplace. If ISP subscribers have an easier time loading websites of existing companies than my new innovative product, there?s no way that I will be able to compete or succeed.

Sincerel y,

Alex
