Dear FCC,

My name is Chad D Pavao and I live in Fall River, MA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it ISPs could have too much power to determine my Internet experience by providing better access to some services but not others.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is important to me because I spend most of my free time playing video games online. While I enjoy playing games that were produced by established companies, I also enjoy the games produced by the smaller unknown companies. I don't think ISP's should be allowed to dictate to me what games I can and cannot play, just because smaller companies can't afford to pay the ISP's extra fees so people can play there games.

Sincerely,

Chad D Pavao
