Dear FCC,

My name is Sarah and I live in Bellingham, WA.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it users may have fewer options and a less diverse Internet.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The Internet is a place where I can connect with people that I can't connect with while I travel. Without the Internet, I wouldn't be able to talk to half of my friends, I wouldn't be able to support my friend's business, and I wouldn't be successful in school, which is very important to me.

Sincerely,

Sarah
