Dear FCC,

My name is casey and I live in columbia, MO.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it users may have fewer options and a less diverse Internet.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because ISPs could act as the gatekeepers to their subscribers.

The internet is important to everyone. Wouldn't pimping out the existing internet cause an uproar? I think people would react violently. If the fcc bends over and lets cable companies fuck them and the public in the ass for money it will disrupt the social balance of the world asbwe know it.

Sincerel y,

casey
