Dear FCC,

My name is Parley Clemons and I live in Orlando, FL.

Net neutrality, the principle that Internet service providers (ISPs) treat all data that travels over their networks equally, is important to me because without it users may have fewer options and a less diverse Internet.

A pay-to-play Internet worries me because new, innovative services that can't afford expensive fees for better service will be less likely to succeed.

America needs a free and open internet. As more of our children are failed by public education, we as parents can access the information that we need.

Sincerely,

Parley Clemons
