Re: Protecting and Promoting the Open Internet, GN Docket No. 14-28

Dear Ms. Dortch:

On Tuesday, September 16, 2014, the Wireline Competition and the Consumer & Governmental Affairs Bureaus of the Federal Communications Commission hosted the first in a series of staff-led Open Internet Roundtable Discussions entitled "Policy Approaches to Ensure an Open Internet."¹ On the same day, the Wireless Telecommunications Bureau hosted the "Mobile Broadband" Open Internet Roundtable. The purpose of these roundtables was for Commission staff and interested parties to further examine the actions the Commission should take toward its goal of protecting and promoting Internet openness.

With this letter, the related video recordings available online at <http://www.fcc.gov/events/open-internet-roundtable-policy-approaches> and <http://www.fcc.gov/events/open-internet-roundtable-mobile-broadband> are submitted into the docket for the above-captioned proceeding.

Respectfully Submitted,

Claude Aiken
Acting Deputy Division Chief, Competition Policy Division
Wireline Competition Bureau
Federal Communications Commission
